

References

E-52

1. Washington State Department of Labor and Industries Technology Assessment. Pronex and HomeTrac Cervical Traction. 2015.
2. Hayes, Inc, Health Technology Brief. Outpatient Cervical Traction for Treatment of Neck Pain. Lansdale, PA: Hayes, In.; November, 2015.
3. Bukhari SRI, Shakil-ur-Rehman S, Ahmad S, Naeem A. Comparison between effectiveness of Mechanical and Manual Traction combined with mobilization and exercise therapy in Patients with Cervical Radiculopathy. Pakistan Journal of Medical Sciences. 2016;32(1):31-34.
4. Kang H J, Park TS. Changes in cervical muscle activity according to the traction force of an air-inflatable neck traction device. J Phys Ther Sci. 2015; 27: 2723-2725.
5. Khan RR, Awan WA, Rashid S, Masood T. A randomized controlled trial of intermittent Cervical Traction in sitting Vs. Supine position for the management of Cervical Radiculopathy. Pak J Med Sci. 2017;33(6):1333-1338.
6. Romeo A, Vanti C, Boldrini V, Ruggeri M, et al. Cervical Radiculopathy: Effectiveness of Adding Traction to Physical Therapy—A systematic Review and Meta-Analysis of Randomized Controlled Trials. Physical Therapy. 2018;98(4)231-242.
7. Gregory G, McKivigan JM. Effectiveness of Intermittent Mechanical Traction in Cervical Radiculopathy: A Systematic Review. J Med Res Prac. 2018;7(2)39-46.
8. Shakoore MA, Emran MA, Zaman AKA, Moyeenuzzaman M. Effects of manual continuous home cervical traction in cervical spondylosis. Bangladesh Med Res Counc Bull 2020; 46:128-133.