

References

Y-23

1. Cormier S, Lavigne GL, Choiniere M, Rainville P. Expectations predict chronic pain treatment outcomes. Pain. 2016;157(2):329-338.
2. Hayes, Inc. Hayes Clinical Research Response. Opioid stewardship programs for opioid-naïve and opioid-using patients. Landsdale, PA: Hays, Inc; July,2017.
3. West Virginia Senate Bill 273. West Virginia Code §16-54-1 et seq. Treatment of Pain. June 7, 2018.
4. Provenzano D, Kamal K, Gianetti V. Evaluation of primary care physician chronic pain management practice patterns. Pain Physician J. 2018;21:E593-E602.
5. Elbers S, Wittink H, Pool J, Smeets R. The effectiveness of generic self management interventions for patients with chronic musculoskeletal pain on physical function, self-efficacy, pain intensity and physical activity: A systematic review and meta-analysis. Eur J Pain. 2018;22: 1577—1596.
6. Webster F, Rice K, Bhattacharyya O, Dale C, and Upshur R. An ethnography of chronic pain management in primary care: The social organization of physicians' work in the midst of the opioid crisis. PLOS ONE. 2019;1-16. <https://doi.org/10.1371/journal.pone.0215148>.
7. Saturno P, Angel-garcia D, Nicolas I, Soriano F, Reina M, Diaz M, et al. Development and pilot test of a new set of good practice indicators for chronic nonmalignant pain management. Pain Practice, 2019;19(1):37–51.
8. Fernandez-Castillo R, Gil-Garcia E, Vasquez-Santiago M, Barrientos-Trigo S. Chronic non-cancer pain management by nurses in specialist pain clinics. Brit J Nurs. 2020;29(16):954-959.